

ALK's partner for North America, Merck, announces launch of GRASTEK® (GRAZAX®) in Canada

February 3, 2014

Copenhagen, 2014-02-03 14:02 CET (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) --

ALK (ALKB:DC / OMX: ALK B / AKABY / AKBLF) today announced that its grass sublingual allergy immunotherapy tablet, which is licensed to Merck (known as MSD outside the USA and Canada) for North America, has now been launched in Canada.

Marketed in Europe under the brand name GRAZAX®, the product is known in Canada as GRASTEK®.

The launch announcement follows regulatory approval from the Canadian authorities of the New Drug Submission (NDS).

ALK's President and CEO, Jens Bager, said: "This launch marks another major step forward in globalising our portfolio of sublingual allergy immunotherapy tablets. It also brings an effective new treatment option to grass allergy sufferers in Canada."

In Canada, GRASTEK® is indicated for treatment of grass pollen induced allergic rhinitis (with or without conjunctivitis) in adults and children five years of age and older. Across North America, an estimated 30 million adults and children are estimated to suffer from grass pollen allergy.
